9 N.Y.3d 925 (2007) KENNEDY DONNELLY, INC., Appellant, v. ALFREDO PAGAN-SILVESTRI, as Administrative Law Judge, et al., Respondents. Court of Appeals of the State of New York. Decided April 19, 2007. McGrail & McGrail, New York City (John D. McGrail of counsel), and Jaeckle Fleischmann & Mugel, LLP, for appellant. Dennis T. D'Elia, Albany, and Michael C. Hurtt, for respondents. Chief Judge KAYE and Judges CIPARICK, GRAFFEO, READ, SMITH, PIGOTT and JONES concur. *926 OPINION OF THE COURT MEMORANDUM. The order of the Appellate Division should be affirmed, with costs. The purposes of the Labor Law are to protect workers from injury and to protect employers from debilitating litigation. To fulfill those purposes, the law imposes liability for compensation upon employers "who willfully disregard the safety measures set down by the Legislature in the construction industry" (id., § 3, subd 2[b]; see Mort v A-One Constr. Co., 98 NY2d 288, 292 [2002]; Prigione v Patek Constr. Co., 36 NY2d 173, 176 [1975]). In order to avoid exposing an employer to such liability, the law requires that "prior to the beginning of any construction project or any construction or demolition activity in which work is to be performed, the [owner] shall, in the case of a one- or two-family dwelling, a construction project or demolition activity, do at least the following: "1. For the purpose of preventing the occurrence of accidents or of an injury or the spread of a disease which might occur in the construction work or demolition work, do, within the limits of and in accordance with the provisions of this subdivision, take such precautions as are reasonable and practical; * * * "3. In the case of a one- or two-family dwelling, do, after completion of the construction or demolition project, either: "(a) Repair or make such structural changes to the part of the dwelling where an employee was in the course of performing work at the time of the accident or injury, as are

Posting ads on a popular social network could turn the tables for law enforcement in the next edition of the Silk Road heist case. An online ad posted last week offering a reward of up to $10 million for evidence leading to the arrest of anyone involved in the 2014 hack and sale of more than $325 million worth of the online drug market Silk Road has been scanned by detectives and forensics specialists in at least two states, said two law enforcement officials who spoke on condition of anonymity. Silk Road, which offered encrypted and anonymous access to illegal goods, drugs, and services on the Internet, was shut down last year. The FBI's indictment against its alleged mastermind, Dread Pirate Roberts, and other accomplices shows that he hacked into the servers of the dark web site. The auction, which attracted about 400 advertisers, could have been the first such law enforcement-led bidding process in the United States, said the officials. It was set up by the Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force and the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, which obtained a copy of the ad. The posting, which ended Wednesday, offered a $500,000 reward for identifying and reporting any who helped with the hack. "It shows the evolution of online crime," said Bill Sweetland, the agency's director in New Hampshire. His state's law enforcement agencies, including the State Police, were also investigating, he said. Mr. Sweetland said it was unclear who was responsible for the hacking, but his agency believed the site itself had been hacked by more than one individual. If the auction is successful, detectives will be able to create a map of IP addresses that were accessed by scammers and could serve as the basis for follow-up investigations and the prosecution of those who carried out the hack, he added. "We get requests on an almost daily basis for IP addresses to be investigated," Mr. Sweetland said, "and this is one way to solve the puzzle in a more expedient and economical fashion." A separate law enforcement source in New Jersey said the task force was investigating the posting, though it did not offer any details. The New Jersey Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force is investigating similar activities, including auctions, across the United States, according to a spokeswoman for the agency, which operates out of the state's attorney general's office.
